U.S. Has No Plans to Increase Vietnam Troops to 600,000

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS — High-level U.S. military commanders in Vietnam have not recommended that U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam be raised to 600,000.

This was disclosed August 26 by White House Presidential Assistant George Christian at a morning news briefing.

He was asked about a press report from Saigon that leading military strategists, charged with the long range planning of the war effort, are thinking in terms of building a force of 600,000 troops.

Mr. Christian said, in response to the question:

"The Secretary of Defense (Robert S. McNamara) has advised us he has not received any recommendation" for the reported escalation of troop strength.

PFM Orders Disbandment of Non-Salaried Policemen

President Marcos ordered the disbandment of police officers and special agents working without compensation, even as he took steps to solve the problem of police abuses on the nation's highways which have victimized truck drivers and other motorists.

In calling for the dissolution of all "special" policemen, the President pointed out that the actual order disbanding these functions was issued as far back as April 13, 1960, when Malabon issued a provincial circular to all provincial, city and municipal executives to this effect.

The President in his present directive declared that the "present and past performance" of these peace officers "leave much to be desired."

He underlined the many indiscretions committed by the said special law enforcement officers, including exploitation by politicians, local vested interests, and on their own initiative in involvement with cases of mulcting, extortion and abuse of authority.

He said that the activities of many of these men have proved to be inimical to the present "peace and order drive."

In the same order, he instructed the Philippine Constabulary chief to arrest within 30 days after receipt of his order all such personnel still in harness and confiscate their firearms and prosecute them for "usurpation of authority, illegal possession of firearms" or other violations of the law.

The President also directed local officials to bear down hard on legitimate police officers found to be harassing motorists, truck drivers, merchants and the public at large, on the country's highways.

He asked that governors and mayors exercise tighter control over their police forces, including the weeding out of incompetents and undesirable from police ranks.

He also directed that in the case of arrests or apprehensions for violations of the Land Transportation and Traffic Code, all police officers should comply strictly with the requirements of the law, particularly in submitting the asses to the Land Transportation Commissioner and his deputies within 24 hours of apprehension.

In addition, he asked that traffic violation asses be endorsed immediately for course or other courts having jurisdiction.

To further insure the proper utilization of traffic violation receipts, or temporary operators permits the President asked that all such forms be validated with the LTC.
